Ski club installs new lift

DON CROSBY

SUN TIMES CORRESPONDENT

The Beaver Valley Ski Club is making a major financial investment in its ski lift and snowmaking equipment.

A new chair lift valued at nearly $3 million along with $500,000 worth of new snowmaking equipment will give the club an edge in the upcoming ski season.

"This is probably the largest single investment that Beaver Valley Ski Club has made in its 48 year history," said Tim Oliver, the club's general manager. "Our goal is to make sure that we keep investing to ensure that we have the highest chance of being successful depending on what the weather is."

Oliver explained that the new snowmaking equipment will increase the chances of making snow in temperatures as warm as -2.5 C.

That way at least one ski lift and a series of runs will be available to skiers and snowboarders during warm weather days.

"We're going to redo 11 acres of snow making equipment and that's a combination of some newpipe, fixing some old pipe and adding 52 new tower guns... we're going to put this all into a condensed area that is specifically designed for making snow at minus 2.5 C or colder."

Tim Oliver, general manager of the Beaver Valley Ski Club, with some of the towers for a new four person chair lift.

the first week of January because of unseasonably warm weather conditions.

"It was probably one of the warmest since 2006 when we had a similar weather pattern with unbelievably high seasonal temperatures going into the year compared to the last 20 years," said Oliver.

The club is also replacing a 34-yearold three person chair lift with a new four person chair lift with increased capacity and speed.

The new chair lift will increase the operating speed to 2.3 metres a second and reduce passenger ride time up to the top of the hill from 6.8 minutes to 5.5 minutes. It will carry 17 more chairs (112 vs 95) than the outgoing three chair lift. It includes a loading conveyer system that will create a smooth transition for skiers onto the chair lift similar to those slow moving floors at airport terminals.

"The club is in the process of reinvesting in itself... we have five chair lifts here... we want to increase our uphill capacity to ensure our members don't have lift lines that you would find at public clubs that tend to be a little bit busier," Oliver said.

Adapting to changing weather

The club ruled out purchasing used chairliftequipmentaftergovernment regulations about 10 years ago introduced stringent maintenance regulations which has prolonged the life of many ski lifts.

"From a skiing public point of view (Ontario) operates some of the safest lifts in the country... the spin off from that is that lifts are lasting longer. People don't generally get rid of them after 25 years ... but when it's time to replace them there aren't as many used ones," Oliver said.

The private Beaver Valley Ski Club with a membership of 750 families is situated in the picturesque Beaver Valley along the Niagara Escarpment and is home to 29 trails covering 104 acres of skiable land.

Oliver estimates the club generates more than $2 million into the local economy.

He likens operating a ski resort to farming in the winter time with so much of the business dependent on the vagaries of winter.

Oliver said predicting weather in southern Ontario is becoming much more very difficult and he attributes that to the effects of climate change

"Ithinkitis affecting us in a manner that we see waves of weather now with extreme highs and lows ... Our windows of opportunity for cold weather are shorter and sharper in their peaks and valleys. The amount of thaws that we see during the winter are coming faster," he said.

"There are changes happening and it willbeimperativethatskiareasinvest in their snow making technology and infrastructure because it's something that has to be done every year at some level otherwise you are going to be left behind."

Oliver looks forward to the openingof Talisman Mountain Springs Inn located next door to the ski club.

He said it will offer new club members a place to stay during the winter months and in the end will benefit both the club and Talisman.
