

Grey Highlands enters joint venture with Talisman owners

After coming out of its closed session last Wednesday, Grey Highlands announced that it will be marketing opportunities related to its municipal lands under Beaver Valley Development Project.

The municipality stated it has an executed joint venture agreement with a numbered company represented by Phil Calvano and Brian Ellis, owners of Talisman.

A media release said that public engagement will begin in April on a master plan with an "overall Beaver Valley community vision."

The motion from council stated the first round of consultations had to take place within 60 days of the final execution of the agreement.

The municipal media release said that the whole municipality should benefit from carefully planned development that respects the natural assets of the Beaver Valley.

Paul McQueen was quoted as saying that recent pressures from more visits to the area highlight the need to preserve the natural features.

The joint agreement between the municipality and the company is supported by Grey County and the consulting firm thinkCOMPASS.
